

HOWARD STREET, SAN FRANCISCO, CA

STAKING

In San Francisco's SOMA district Howard Street is a tough place for young trees. Summer winds regularly reach 20 to 30 miles per hour. Constant foot, bike and dog traffic add to the challenges. Pleasanton, California based landscape contractor Shooter and Butts, Inc. chose the traditional method of staking to provide a buffer from the sidewalk traffic and nailed ArborTie onto the stake to provide strength and support for these newly planted trees.
